Navigating

1. Main user menu - This is a menu pop-up. Here you can find all links for administrative tasks.

2. Dialogue pop-ups - these windows communicate messages from the system. More details about dialogue pop-ups can be found in the "Dialogues"-section.

3. Minimized pop-ups - pop-up windows can be minimized, maximized and dragged across the screen.!

4. Pop-up controls - with these buttons you can minimize, maximize or re-arrange all windows together.

⚠ Minimizing, maximizing and dragging windows use javascript functionality. See technical specifications for a list of compatible browser versions.

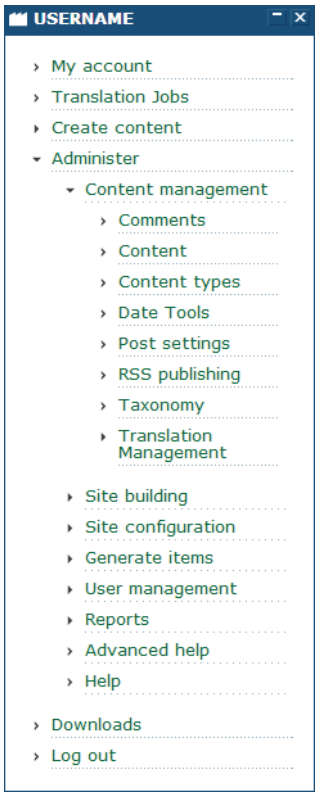
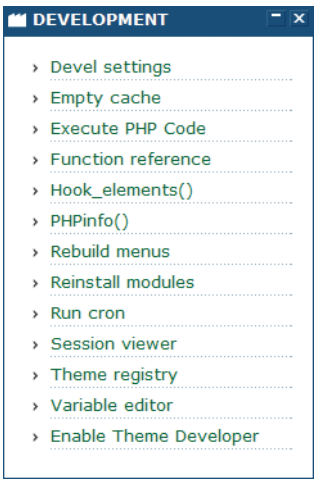
Website

vi-6

Menu pop-ups

These windows are for navigating trough the administrative section of the website. Which menu's appear depends on the page you are currently on and your access level.
Unlike dialogue windows, which appear centered, menu pop-ups appear where they where located last time you visited the page. If the window was minimized or closed, it will be reset to the last maximized position. When you accidently close a window, you can recall it by reloading the page.





Dialogues

1. Help - On some pages, help is available.

2. Status Message - These windows provide extra information on the performed action.

3. Warning - These windows appear when an error occurred, but the system can carry on. Though some revision is required!

4. Error - These windows appear when an error occurred and the system can't carry on. If you just provided input, make sure you followed the input rules.

Help windows appear minimized, while Status-, Warning- and Error windows appear maximized. Last named can be closed by clicking "OK".

A page, similar in form to a story, is a simple method for creating and displaying information that rarely changes, such as an "About us" section of a website. By default, a page entry does not allow visitor comments and is not featured on the site's initial home page.

Creating content overview

To create new content go to Create content in the main user menu. You will land on a page where you can choose which content type you want to create. A short description gives more information about the content type.
After choosing a content type you will be redirected to a page where you can fill in the fields. What fields are available, depends on the content type, but they all have a mandatory title and a not mandatory body field.

The different settings when adding content:

1. Language - Here you choose the language the content you add is in. Setting this option is important for translation.

2. Disable rich-text - This option lets you toggle between a WYSIWYG-editor and HTML.

3. Input format - Here you can choose which WYSIWYG-editor you want to use.

4. Revision information - When this is checked, this content will be duplicated instead of altered when changes are made in the future.

5. Comment settings - Here you can choose whether visitors and/or users can comment on this content.

6. File attachments - Here you can add files for download to your content.

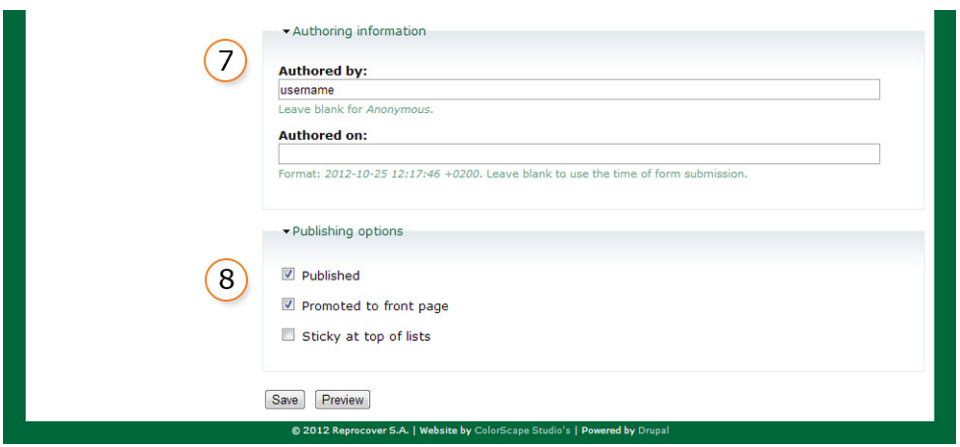
Authored on:



7. Authoring information - Here you can set the author and date. The current logged in user is set as the author by default, but can be changed. If the date is left blank, the current date and time will be used.

8. Publishing options - Here you can specify whether the content is published[i], promoted to the front page[ii] and whether the content is sticky[iii].

Not all options are always available, this depends on the content type and your access level.

Content will only be visible for visitors when it is published. Promoted to frontpage is fairly obvious, but remember that, though the option might be available, it doesn't mean it will show up on the front page. This depends on the content type. Sticky means that this content will show up on top in overview lists, neglecting the normal sort order. Handle with care; if every item is sticky in a list, things can get messy!

Input types overview

Every content type has its own input fields and every field has one of several input types.
The different input types are:

1. Single line text - A single line with no lay out.

2. Autocomplete text - Here you enter one of existing valid values. When you start typing all according values will drop down in a list. The grey circle in the right indicates that it is an autocomplete field.

3. Drop Down - Choose one of the list.

4. Selection list - Choose one or multiple (by ctrl-clicking multiple options) from the list.

5. Radio select - Choose one of the list.

6. Checkboxes - Select one or more from the list.

7. Upload - Interface for uploading a file or deleting an uploaded.

8. Reference - A reference to other content. This will always be a dropdown or autocomplete field, containing the Titles of all proper content. In case of an autocomplete field, make sure you pick an item of the list, otherwise an error will raise.

9. Rich text - A text field for longer texts. This text can be formatted. There are two ways of formatting text: in plain html or with a WYSIWYG editor. See “Formatting text” sections for more details on formatting text.

Attaching files to content

You can attach files to most of the content types.
To do this click on the "Choose file" button (1.) and navigate on your hard drive (2.) to the file to choose it. Click on the "Attach" button (3.) to start the upload (4.).
When your upload is finished you see an overview of the attached files (5.). Here you can specify a description. The "List" box will be checked by default. All files with "List" checked on, will be displayed in a list below the content. Checking "List" off is useful when you attach images to place in the content body text, but don't want them to show up in the attachment list. See "Formatting text - images" section for more details on this specific subject.
When "Delete" is checked, the file will be deleted upon saving.

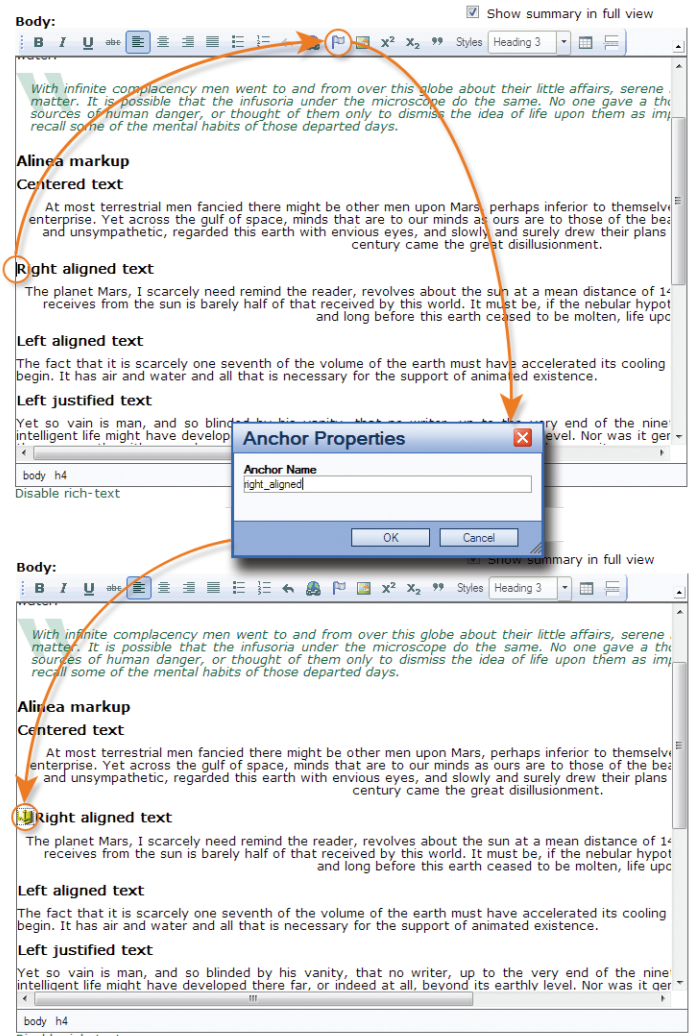
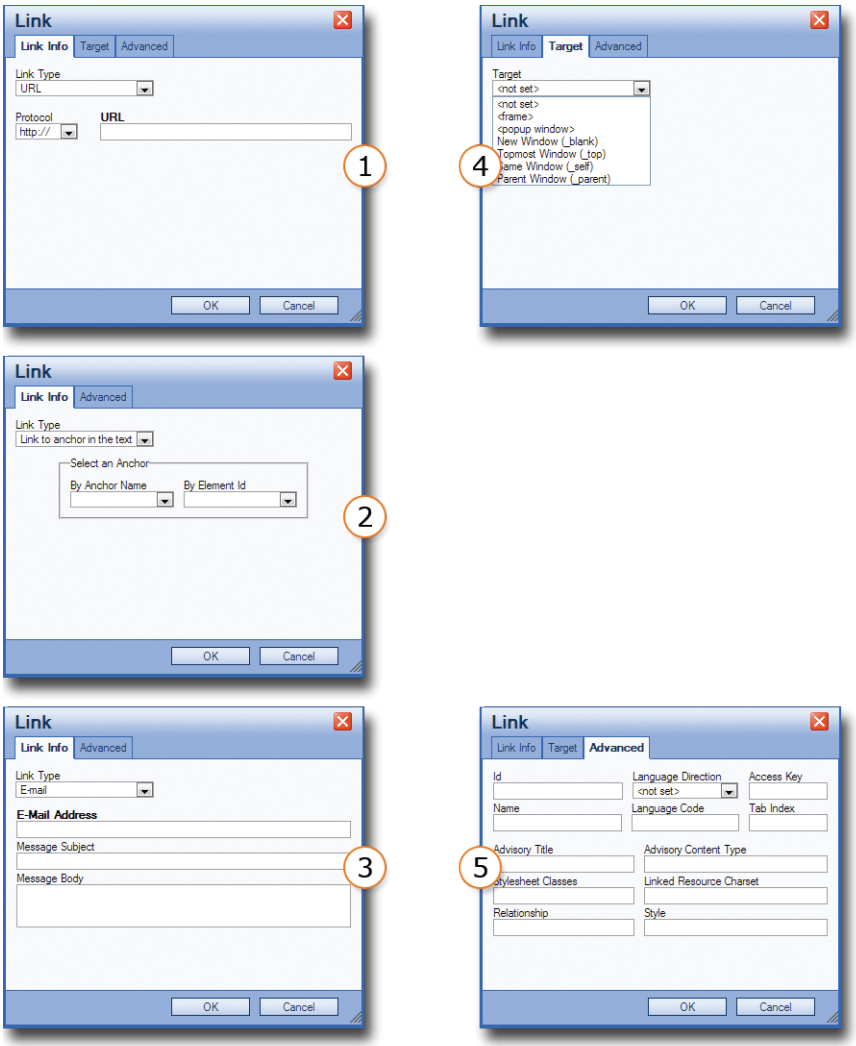
Formatting text - anchors

Anchors are bookmarks in your text you can link to.
To create an anchor place your cursor on the desired location in your text and click the anchor button. An anchor properties window will pop up where you must specify a unique name for your anchor.
After clicking “OK” an anchor-symbol appears where you placed your cursor. This logo is only visible when editing the content.





Formatting text - links

To insert a link in your text, select the text you want to make a link and click the link button. A new window will pop up where you can set up the link. There are three types of links: to an url (1.), to an anchor (2.) and to an email address(3.).
When you create a link to a url, you can specify the target (4.) where the link will open.
When you create a link to an anchor you can choose one of the anchors in your text in the anchor dropdown.
When you create a link to an email address you have to specify an email address. A subject and message body are not required.
In the advanced tab (5.) you can specify special HTML and CSS values. If you do not have the necessary HTML skills, it is best to leave the default settings here.

Website

vi-18

Formatting text - images

To place a picture in your text, place your cursor on the desired place in the text. Click the "Insert image" button. Specify the location of the picture in the URL field!. You can specify an alternative text. Although not required, it is highly recommended to specify an alternative text. This text appears when the picture can't load. There are also some basic formatting options you can specify.

⚠ You can only insert images who already exist somewhere on the net, either on the Reprocom site, either on an external site. Inserting an image from your hard disk is a two step process: uploading the image as an attachment to the content, then inserting the image in the text. The location of the image can be found in the attachments overview. See section "Attaching files to content" for more details.

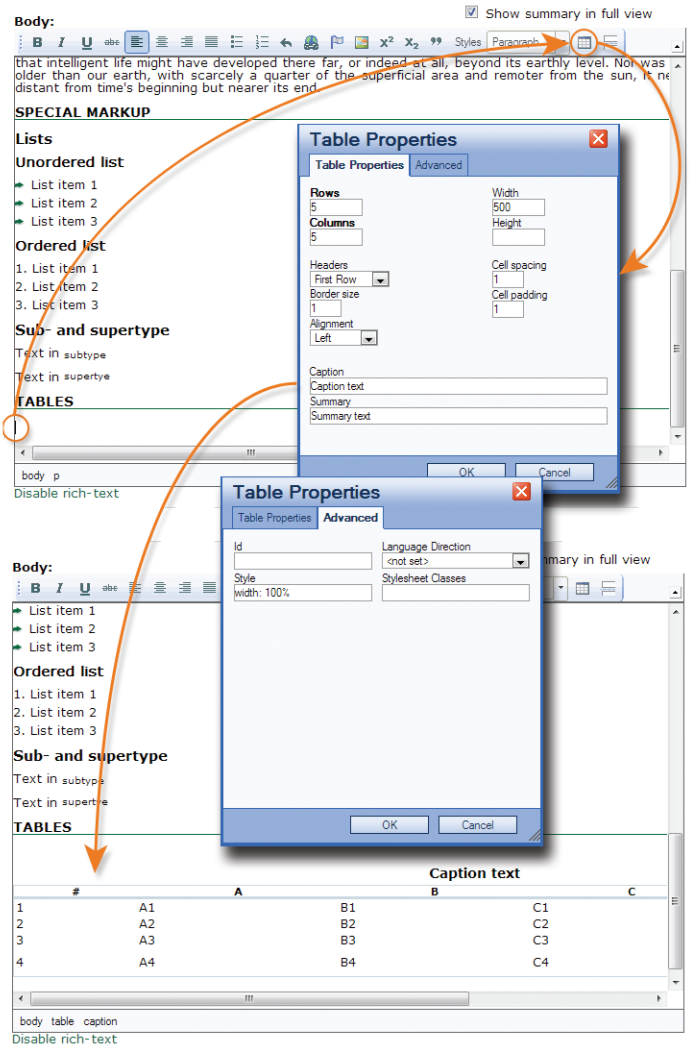
In the “Link” tab you can specify a URL and a target if you want your image to be a link.
In the “Advanced” tab you can specify more settings for your image. For some of the settings some basic HTML knowledge is required. A hint is to change basic settings in the “Image info” tab, and see how it affects the settings in the “Advanced” tab.

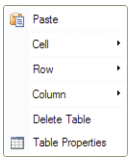
Website

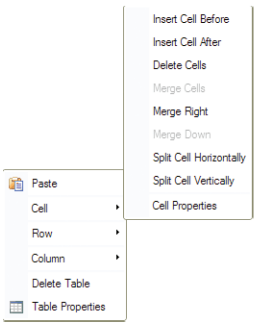
vi-20

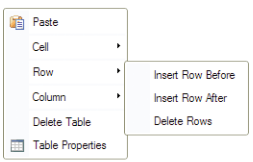
Formatting text-tables

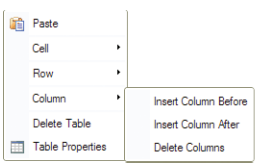
To place a table in your text, place your cursor on the desired place in the text. Click the "Insert table" button.
In the "Table Properties" window you can specify columns, rows and headers. You can also specify a caption and a summery.
In the "Advanced tab" you can specify additional HTML and CSS properties.

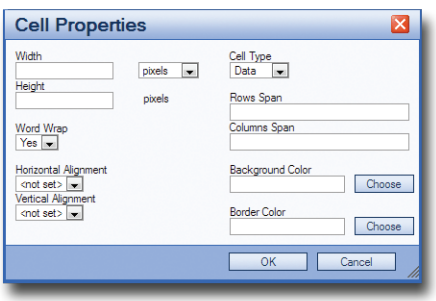












If you right click on a cell in the table you get a context menu where you can add or delete rows and columns, split or merge cells or delete the table. You can also pop up the table properties.
If you choose “Cell properties” in the “Cell” submenu, you can specify formatting properties of the cell.

Split teaser from content

The teaser of content is the first part of the body text that is used as an introduction, visible on overview pages. Default the system decides where to split content and teaser, but whit this function you can decide yourself where to split.
To to this, place your cursor on the desired location in your text and click the “Split teaser” button.

Create News

This content type only has a Title field and a Body field. Although the Body field is not mandatory, it is advised to fill in the Body for News-content, as otherwise an empty News-item would be created.

Website

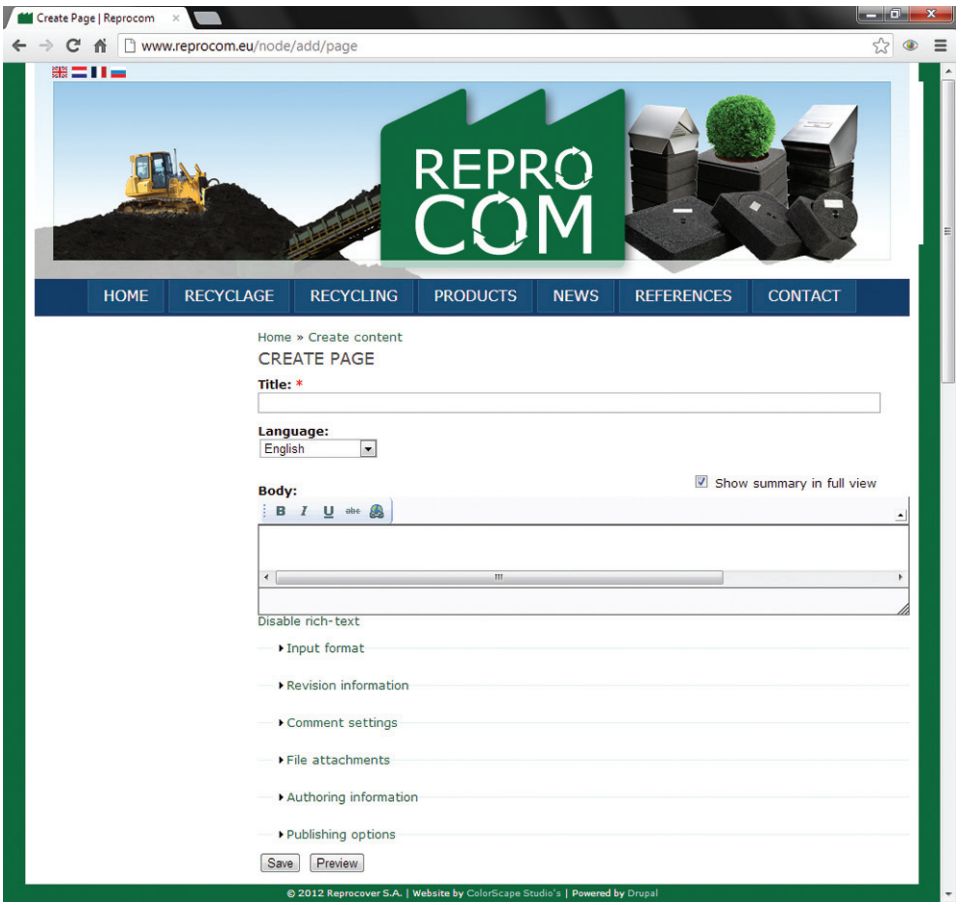
Create Page

A Page is structural the same as news. The only real difference is that Pages have comments turned off by default and news have them turned on by default. The practical difference between the two is that news is meant for short news-feeds, whereas pages should be seen more as static pages, with long therm content which will not be changed dramatically often.



Create Brand

A Brand has a Description instead of a Body field. As with the Body fields, the Description field is not mandatory.
A Brand has only one extra field: the Brand logo. This is a mandatory field. Choose a file to upload. Allowed files are png, jpg or jpeg files. The minimum resolution for these pictures is 300px x 200px, the maximum file size is 2MB.
New Brands shouldn't often be created; the four main brands already exist in the system.

Website

vi-26

Create Product

There are two ways to reach this page. The first way is via the Add content page or the Main user menu. The second way is via the Brand overview (when clicked on a brand logo on the products page).
How you enter this page will affect the availability of the Brand field.
When this page is entered via the menu, this field is available. A valid Brand must be entered correctly, or an error will raise. However, when you start typing, the available options will show.
When this page is entered via a Brand overview page, the Brand option will not be editable and filled in with the Brandname of the reference page (the page you where previously on).

Other fields for Products are:

- Type, Class - Dropdown lists.
- Code - A textual product code.
- Height, Height adjustable, Width, Depth, Inside diameter - A whole number, centimetre Must be between 1 and 200.
- Weight, Weight lid - A decimal number, accurate to three figures after the decimal, in kilogram.
- Datasheet - Upload a pdf-file with the datasheet. Maximum 20MB.
- Price exc. VAT - The net price of the product in Euro.
- VAT rate - VAT rate to be included.
- Picture - Upload a product shot of the product.

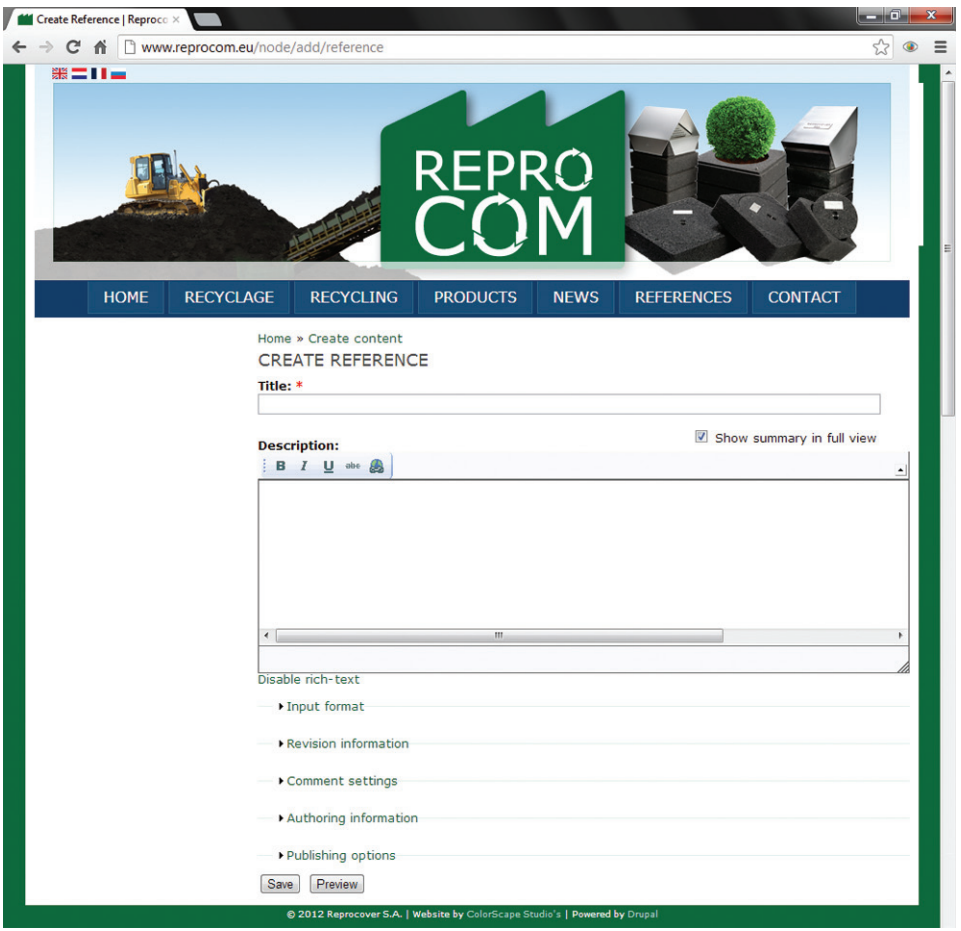
Website

vi-28

Create Reference

A Reference content type has only a Title and an optional Description. A Reference acts as a “container” or “group” for pictures. Eg.: a reference with name “Ref X” could be a container for “Picture A”, “Picture B” and “Picture C” while “Ref Y” could be a container for “Picture M”, “Picture N” and “Picture O”. See “Create Reference picture” section for more details.



Create Reference picture

Besides a Title and a Body field, a Reference picture has two additional fields: Reference and Picture.
The Reference field works in a similar way as the Brand field for a Product. It's availability depends on how you entered the page (via Main user menu or via References page).
The second additional field is a picture upload. Maximum file size is 5MB, no resolution restrictions, but the file must be png, jpeg or jpg.

Content management

Go to: Administer » Content management » Content in the Main user menu. This screen has two main parts: the controls (1. to 7.) and an overview table (columns 8. to 13.).
With 1. to 6. you can filter the table for a better overview.

1. status - Filter the content list by its status (published, sticky, ...)

2. type - Filter the content by its content type (Product, News, ...)

3. Language - Filter the content by language.

4. Filter/Refine - When no filter is applied, this button marks "Filter" When one is applied, it marks "Refine". Each time you click "Refine" the selection will be narrowed down, eg. when you first filtered out only News, changed your selection criteria to "Published" and clicked refine, you will only keep published News items.

5. Undo - Remove the last applied filter.

6. Reset - Remove all filters.

7. Update options - See next section for more details.

8. Title column - The title of the content.

9. Type column - The content type.

10. Author column - The author of the content.

11. Status column - The status (published / unpublished).

12. Language column - The language the content is in.

13. Operations column - A link to edit the content.

Update options

With this option you can execute an action on all the selected content. In the example the first three rows are selected. The selection box on the left in the title row is a shortcut to select all visible rows.

- Publish / Unpublish - Publish or unpublish content.
- Promote or Demote - Promote content to the front page or remove from the front page.
- Make sticky - Make content prior to other content to appear on top of lists.
- Remove stickiness - Remove priority on content.
- Delete - Delete the selected content.

Editing content

To edit content you click on the "edit" link on the content management page (ref. section "Content management"). Another way is to go to the most specific page for the content you want to edit. From there, click on the "Edit" tab below the content title. You will be redirected to the edit page where you can adjust the fields you want.
If "Create new revision" is checked on, the content will be copied to a new entry when you click "Save". The new entry will include the adjustments you made. The original, without the adjustments, gets unpublished automatically.

Translating content

The four languages for which an interface is provided, are English, Dutch, French and Russian.
To switch between languages, click on the flags on the top left in the header.
Content in a different language or content that is language neutral, will not be shown on the overview pages or menus. This means that content that is not translated will be hidden for the visitor. The content stays accessible through a direct link though, but untranslated.
To go to the translation menu click on the "Translate" tab.!
On this screen you can see to what languages the content has been translated to.

⚠ This tab is only available when the original content has a language assigned to it. The tab is not available for "Language neutral" content.

From the translation menu of content you can click “add translation”. You will be redirected to a “create content” page. To make it easier to keep consistency, the fields are already filled in with values from the original language. You should replace the values with values properly translated.
